Governor: Republican

In the Senate, Republicans currently have a supermajority, which is when they control more than  $\frac{2}{3}$  of the seats in the chamber.

In the House of Representatives, Republicans have almost enough seats to claim a supermajority.

If a party all votes together when they have a supermajority, it means they have enough votes to overturn gubernatorial vetoes or to act on some budget and tax provisions without requiring any input from the other party.

*There are currently vacancies in State Senate District 3 and State House Districts 39, 69, and 100.
